

Religion, Healthcare and Politics in the Pandemic Context in Brazil

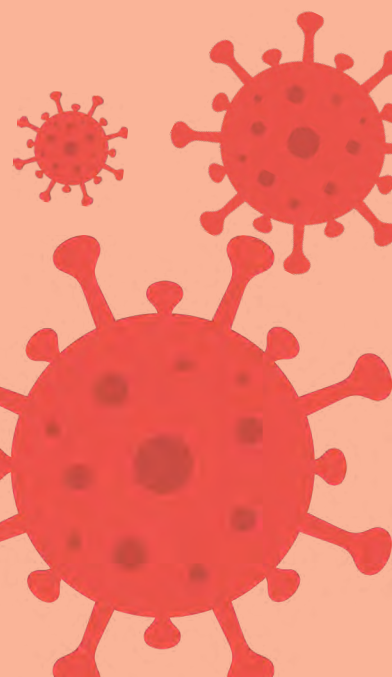

This virtual discussion examines the intersections between religion, healthcare and politics in Brazil during the pandemic to reflect on the social movements and actors who were part of the dispute in the political and religious realms and their impact on the public health realm.

Dr. Ana Keila Mosca Pinezi is Associate Professor at the Department of Public Health (DeSCo) at the Federal University of Triângulo Mineiro (UFTM) and currently Visiting Scholar at the Behner Stiefel Center for Brazilian Studies at San Diego State University.

Dr. Rodrigo Toniol is Adjunct Professor in the Cultural Anthropology Department at the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro and at the Anthropology Postgraduate Program at Unicamp. He is the president of the Association of Social Scientists of Religion of Mercosur (2018-2022).

Tuesday, November 9, 2021
4:00 p.m. PST

Scan here to join

Zoom ID: 847 0443 5827

